Thanks Ryan. Happy with that as long as the briefing on the 11th is equivalent to the one from the 10th and the armed officers meet/brief with 19 - to prevent blue on blue issues.

No it was a case of allocating a team and I think T6 could provide the most AFOs on the day. One team will be with the LOS car and one team will be with the prison van the unarmed will be with the main player who will not be near the plot as far as I am aware.

Thanks Ryan, have team 6 got a more important role than team 12 and 7?

Morning Sir,

The briefing will take place at 1500hrs and the team leaders from T7/T12 will be at this briefing.

The reason was that their DI thought it was better for our department since we would have 3 teams off on the 10th just for the briefing hence just TLs from T7 and T12 along with the whole of T6 for the 10th.

I hope this clears things up a little.

Regards
Ryan

Hi Ryan, that is fine.

Can you find out why everyone is not being briefed together though please?

Also, what time is the briefing on the 10th please?

Chris

Sir,

There is a deployment pencilled in for OP UTARA on the 11th Dec and I believe you are blue. Intel suggests there is going to be a prison break and there will be a 3 team deployment to deal with this, 2 armed and 1 unarmed.

Gary Kinch Personal information is the OIC and has booked the 5th floor briefing room at NSY on 10th Dec for a taped briefing. All of T6 and the SFOs etc would be briefed on the 10th. I would need to duty vary T6 to accommodate the briefing as they are early turn.

T12 will be the other armed team and T7 the unarmed team they will be briefed on the day of deployment.

I hope this makes sense.

Regards
Ryan
